Important details:

- Once submitted, this registration is non-transferable (assigned to the individual above) and all associated costs/fees are non-refundable.
- In accordance with FERPA guidelines, all communication between TRAA and the registrant will be directed to the individual's personal contact information. The registrant retains all responsibility for communicating his/her certification status and other pertinent details to his/her employer (if applicable).
- As with all testing events, validating and confirming the security at testing location is subject to the discretion of the proctor.
- Once the registration form is submitted, it is the participant's responsibility to inform TRAA via email of any changes in his/her address/contact information. If the participant fails to notify us of any applicable changes he/she will incur any/all associated costs (duplicate item, postage, etc.).
- By participating in the program, registered participants authorize us to include their name, level achieved, ID number, city/state/zip, and expiration information in our online certification directory and any related publications/documentation at our discretion.
